Biographical Note

Priscilla Copeland Reining was a social anthropologist and Africanist who worked for the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS) from 1974 to 1989. Her area of specialty was sub-Saharan Africa, specializing in desertification, land tenure, land use, kinship, population, fertility, and HIV/AIDS. During the 1970s, she pioneered the use of satellite imagery in conjunction with ethnographic data. She is also known for her ground-breaking research in the late 1980s that showed that uncircumcised men were more susceptible to contracting HIV/AIDS than circumcised men.

Reining was born on March 11, 1923 in Chicago, Illinois. She studied anthropology at University of Chicago, where she earned both her A.B. (1945) and Ph.D. (1967) in anthropology. During her graduate studies, she studied peer group relations among the Ojibwa of the Red Lake Indian Reservation in Minnesota (1947, 1950-51). Her husband, Conrad Reining, accompanied her to the field, an experience that inspired him to also become an anthropologist.

In 1951-53 and 1954-55, Reining conducted fieldwork among the Haya of Bukoba District, Tanganyika (now known as Tanzania) as a Fellow of the East African Institute of Social Research. While research for her dissertation focused on the agrarian system of the Haya, Reining also conducted fertility surveys for the East African Medical Survey, studying the relationship between STDs and fertility in Buhaya and Buganda. During the 1980s, Reining became interested in AIDS when she observed that the Haya were dying from the disease at a much higher rate than neighboring groups. When she learned of a possible link between circumcision and the spread of HIV, she drew a map of circumcision practice among the ethnic groups of Africa and found that uncircumcised men were 86% more likely to contract HIV than circumcised men. These results were published in "The Relationship Between Male Circumcision and HIV Infection in African Populations" (1989), which she coauthored with John Bongaarts, Peter Way, and Francis Conant.

Beginning in the 1970s, Reining began exploring the use of satellite imagery in ethnographic research. In 1973, she used Landsat data to identify individual Mali villages, the first use of satellite data in anthropology (Morán 1990). That same year, as a consultant for USAID, she also used ERTS-1 imagery to estimate carrying capacity in Niger and Upper Volta (now known as Burkino Faso). She continued to apply satellite data in her research throughout her career, including in 1993, when she returned to Tanzania to study the environmental consequence of population growth and HIV/AIDS among the Haya.

In 1974, Reining joined the Office of International Science of AAAS as a research associate. She stayed on to become Project Director for the Cultural Factors in Population Programs and to direct a number of projects under the Committee on Arid Lands. She also served as Project Director of the Ethnography of Reproduction project, for which she conducted fieldwork in Kenya in 1976. In 1990, she left AAAS for an appointment as Courtesy Professor of African Studies at University of Florida.

Prior to working for AAAS, Reining worked at the Smithsonian Institution (1966, 1968-70), during which she was the coordinator for the Urgent Anthropology Program in the now defunct Center for the Study of Man. She also taught at University of Minnesota (1956-59), American University (1959-60), and Howard University (1960-64). In addition, she worked as a consultant for various organizations, including Department of Justice, Peace Corps, International Bank for Reconstruction & Development (IBRD), Food and Agriculture Organization, and Carrying Capacity Network.

Reining was also actively involved in various organizations. She served as Secretary of the AAAS Section H (Anthropology) and was a founding member of the American Anthropological Association (AAA) Task Force on AIDS. She was also a fellow of the African Studies Association, AAA, AAAS, East African Academy, Society for Applied Anthropology, and Washington Academy of Science. In 1990, she was honored with a Distinguished Service Award from AAA.

Reining died of lung cancer at the age of 84 on July 19, 2007.

Scope and Content Note

These papers primarily document the professional life of Priscilla Reining. The collection contains correspondence, field research, research files, writings, day planners, teaching files, student files, photographs, maps, sound recordings, and electronic records.

Reining's research files, particularly on the Red Lake Ojibwa, the Haya, HIV/AIDS, and satellite imagery, form a significant portion of the collection. Her consultancy work is also well-represented, as well as her involvement in a large number of professional organizations. The collection also contains a great deal of material relating to her work on different programs and projects at AAAS, including the Committee on Arid Lands, Ethnography of Reproduction Project, and Cultural Factors in Population Programs. Also present in the collection are materials from her time as Urgent Anthropology Program Coordinator at the Smithsonian Institution, her files as an instructor and professor, and her files as a student at University of Chicago. Materials from her personal life can also be found in the collection, such as correspondence and childhood mementos.

Restrictions on Access

Some materials from the East African Medical Survey and Ethnography of Reproduction project contain personal medical history and are thus restricted. Grant applications sent to Reining to review are also restricted as well as her students' grades, and recommendation letters Reining wrote for her students. Electronic records are also restricted.

A small portion of the materials relating to Reining's Haya research, Ethnography of Reproduction project, and IBRD ujamaa research suffered severe mold damage. These materials have been cleaned and may be accessed. The legibility of some of the documents, however, is limited due to water and mold stains. Mold odor is also still present.

Restrictions on Use

Contact the repository for terms of use.

Extent

The total extent of the collection is 60.25 linear feet (145 boxes) plus 2 oversized flat boxes, 6 sound recordings, 23 electronic records, and 2 map drawers. Of the total extent,

2.9 linear feet (7 boxes) are restricted.

Provenance

These papers were donated to the National Anthropological Archives by Priscilla Reining's sons, Robert Reining and Conrad Reining, in 2009.

Related Collections

Additional materials at the NAA relating to Priscilla Reining can be found in the papers of Gordon Gibson and John Murra, as well as in the records of the Center for the Study of Man and the records of the Department of Anthropology. Photo Lot 97 contains two Haya photos taken by Reining that are not duplicated in this collection. The papers of her husband, Conrad Reining, are also at the NAA.

The archives of the American Association for the Advancement of Science also holds Reining's papers relating to her work for the organization.

Processing Note

The papers of Priscilla Reining were received partially organized. The processing archivist kept existing groupings and arrangement and organized the collection into 13 series. Original folder titles were retained with titles assigned by the archivist placed within square brackets. Oversized and restricted materials were separated and replaced with notes indicating original and new locations.

Unannotated books not authored by Reining were separated from the collection and donated to other libraries. Unannotated published maps were also removed from the collection and added to the Department of Anthropology Collections Division's map reference file.

Because most of the collection was stored in Reining's basement, there is evidence of minor mold damage throughout parts of the collection. Materials that suffered severe mold damage (or were stored with those materials) were cleaned and are housed in boxes 143-145 at the end of the collection. Materials no longer legible were discarded, along with materials of low research value, such as drafts and copies of publications and financial receipts.

The archivist would like to thank Haley Atkinson and Rachel Schimke for their assistance in processing this collection.

The processing of this collection was made possible by a financial donation from Robert Reining and Conrad Reining.

Series Description and Container List

Series 1. Correspondence. 1944-2007

4.4 linear feet

This series contains both personal and professional correspondence. Folders are arranged chronologically, however it should be noted that the date ranges of many of the folders overlap.

More correspondence can be found throughout the collection filed by subject.

Series 2. Research. 1955-1970

25.5 linear feet

This series is organized into the following subseries:

SUBSERIES: RED LAKE OJIBWA – As a graduate student at University of Chicago, Reining conducted field research on peer group relations among the Ojibwa (Chippewa) of the Red Lake Indian Reservation in Minnesota (1947, 1950-51). This subseries contains her research as well as a copy of her master’s thesis. This subseries is unarranged.

SUBSERIES: HAYA – This subseries contains Reining’s research and writings on the Haya. Materials span from her early dissertation work in the 1950s on Haya agrarian systems in Bukoba to her 1993 research on environmental consequences of population growth and HIV/AIDS among the Haya. Reining had been assigned to work among the Haya in Tanzania (then known as Tanganyika) in the 1950s as a Fellow of the East African Institute of Social Research (E.A.I.S.R.), Makerere College, Kampala, Uganda. This subseries consequently also contains materials relating to E.A.I.S.R., including correspondence with Audrey Richards, who was director of the institute. Also represented is her survey work in Buhaya and Buganda on STDs and fertility for the East African Medical Survey. Materials in this subseries include informant interviews, genealogies, and questionnaires that she collected on households/families in entire villages. The surveys of maternity history for the East African Medical Survey are restricted as they contain personal medical history. Also in this subseries are satellite imagery, photographs, her dissertation, drafts of her unpublished manuscript “Haya Kinship,” and her Haya publications. This subseries is unarranged.

For additional Haya-related materials, see Series 1. Correspondence, Series 12. Photographs, and Series 11. Maps. For Reining’s consultancy work in Tanzania, see also Series 4. Professional Activities.

SUBSERIES: SATELLITE – This subseries documents Reining’s work and interest in the use of satellite data in anthropological research. There are also some materials on aerial photography. In addition to containing materials from satellite-related seminars and workshops, this series also contains her consultancy work for USAID, for which she used ERTS-1 imagery to estimate human and animal carrying capacity in Niger and Upper Lake Volta. Other satellite-related research can be found in the Haya subseries and Series 3. AAAS and Series 4. Professional Activities.

SUBSERIES: AIDS – This subseries documents Reining’s interest in HIV/AIDS research. Most of this subseries consists of her involvement in AIDS-related workshops, seminars, and conferences, as well as the AAA’s AIDS Task Force, which she helped found. This subseries also contains her circumcision research and materials relating to her appearance on the BBC documentary on AIDS, “The Valley of Life or Death.”

For additional materials on HIV/AIDS, see the Haya subseries in this series and Series 4. Professional Activities.

SUBSERIES: OTHER RESEARCH – This subseries contains general research files that are not clearly associated with a specific project.

Additional research files can be found in Series 3. AAAS and Series 4. Professional Activities.

Series 3. AAAS. 1971-1990

11.1 linear feet

This series contains materials from Reining’s employment at AAAS, where she worked from 1974 to 1989. Most of this series is comprised of her work for the Cultural Factors in Population Program and the Committee on Arid Lands. Among the files are transcripts of interviews that she and her colleagues conducted with various eminent scholars on population and cultural change. This work resulted in the report Culture and Population Change, which was produced to prepare the American delegation for the World Population Conference held in Bucharest, Romania in 1974. This series also contains materials from the Ethnography of Reproduction project, the purpose of which was to examine how modernization affected family size. The project, designed and directed by Reining, involved field research in Kenya, Mexico, and the Philippines. Reining conducted the field work on the Kikuyu of Kenya, and these files comprise the bulk of the project’s presence in this series. The World Fertility Survey questionnaires that were distributed for this project have been restricted because they contain medical history information of individuals. Also present in this series is a great deal of subject files and conference, workshop, and seminar materials on desertification and arid lands as well as the use of satellite imagery. This series is unarranged.

Other AAAS materials can be found in Series 2. Research, Subseries. Satellite and Series 5. Daily Planners and Notebooks. For additional materials on AAAS conferences, see Series 4. Professional Activities.

Reining was actively involved in various professional organizations, such as AAA, AAAS, and African Studies Association. This series contains papers she presented, materials relating to conference sessions she organized, and materials from conferences, seminars, and workshops that she attended. This series also contains her work as a consultant for agencies such as IBRD and the Carrying Capacity Network and her service on boards for organizations such as the Renewable Natural Resources Foundation. Files are loosely grouped by organization.

More conference and workshop materials can be found in Series 2. Research, Series 3. AAAS, and Series 5. Daily Planners and Notebooks. Reining's research on carrying capacity for USAID can be found in Series 2. Research, Subseries. Satellite.

Series 10. Biographical and Personal Files. 1934-2004

1.1 linear foot

This series contains Reining's curriculum vitae, job applications, and materials that document her nonprofessional life. These include childhood drawings and letters, personal genealogical research, and materials regarding her husband's memorial fund. This series also contains a copy of J. Loy "Pat" Maloney's diary that he had sent to Reining's mother. Maloney was the Managing Editor of the Chicago Tribune, best known for the "Dewey Defeat Truman" headline. The diary is an account of his Pan American tour around the world during the 1940s. This series is unarranged.
