INTRODUCTION

The papers of Robert LeMoyne Barrett were received by the National Anthropological Archives in 1976 as a donation of Mrs. Marjorie Childs, whose late husband, Herbert Childs, had intended to write a biography of Robert Barrett.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

These papers reflect the early life of Robert LeMoyne Barrett (b. 1871) geographer, traveler, and writer. Included are outgoing correspondence which for the most part was intended for publication, manuscripts on various topics, two published articles on Norway, field notes, sketches, charts, maps, noteslips, photographs and other items relating to his various trips from 1892-1909. The bulk of the material reflects the expeditions of Norway conducted in the summers of 1897-98, the Dixon-Barrett Russia-Siberia Expedition of 1901-02, the Baja Peninsula of 1903-04, the Barrett-Huntington Inner Asia Expedition of 1904-06, and Abyssinia in 1909. There is some material on a trip to Morocco in 1892, the Canadian Rockies in 1893, Colorado-Arizona-New Mexico in 1900. There is only a sketch book for a 1923 journey to the Himalayas.

Also included are class lecture notes from his geography courses at Harvard, some material on Japanese writings, passports, the correspondence of Roland Dixon from Russia to W. M. Davis, and the manuscript of Ghulan Rasul Galwan of Leh, India, Barrett's Ladakhi caravan leader in 1905-06. There is little material that calls attention to his early childhood or later personal life. With one small exception, there is no material on his many journeys after 1909. There is no material on the professional and scientific organizations of which he belonged. There are no incoming letters or any manuscripts of books that were published.

The photograph collection is large with early turn of the century prints and negatives of Norway, Europe, the American Southwest, Baja, California, and Inner Asia. Most of the photographs are of mountainous terrains and geographical features of the various locals of his journeys; however, there are a few pictures of Navajo Indians of the early 1900's and Asians of the same period. The bulk of the photograph collection concerns the Inner Asian Expedition which passed through India, Chinese Turkestan, and China and the many small villages en route with landscape views of the Himalayas predominating. Most of these were taken with a theodolite camera capable of measuring altitude.

A copy of a 1976 biographical sketch of Barrett's life entitled "Robert LeMoyne Barrett, 1871-1969; Last of the Founding Members of the Association of American Geographers," by Geoffrey J. Martin is also included which lists a bibliography of Barrett's publications.

EXTENT

The collection occupies approximately six linear feet of shelf space.

SERIES DESCRIPTIONS AND CONTAINER LIST

SERIES I: THE LETTERS OF ROBERT LeMOYNE BARRETT, 1892-1909. 10 inches.

Arranged chronologically by expedition.

While there is some actual correspondence, most of the letters were written with publication intended. Several have been edited, and both original and annotated, as well as, final typewritten forms are present. The letters concern the various expeditions: Morocco, April 1892; the Canadian Rockies, October 1893; the Dixon-Barrett Russia-Siberia Expedition, 1901-02; the Baja Peninsula, 1903-04; the Barrett-Huntington Inner Asia Expedition, 1904-06; and Abyssinia, 1909. The letters of the last two expeditions are bound and ready for publication. The letters are addressed to his parents primarily, others to Thomson, Aunt Mae, Alica, Juli, and Win. They are highly descriptive emphasizing the geographical features, as well as, the people who inhabit these regions.

SERIES III: MATERIALS RELATING TO EXPEDITIONS, 1897-1923.
5 inches & oversize.

Arranged chronologically by expedition.

Field notes, notebooks, sketchbooks, map sketches with notes, Dixon's correspondence, and general note observations. There is an incomplete set of material for any one expedition. In general, these are on the spot notes and sketches made in a haphazard fashion by Barrett of what he saw on his journeys to Norway, 1897-98; France, Italy, Norway, 1899; Colorado, 1900; Siberia, 1909-02; Nevada-California, 1903; Inner Asia 1905-06 and the Himalayas in 1923. Also included are Roland Dixon's correspondence from Russia to W. M. Davis (Harvard geography professor and founder of the Association of American Geographers) and his general observations of Siberia.

SERIES IV: NOTE SLIPS, 1903-1909. 6 inches.

Arranged chronologically.

3" x 5" noteslips in leather index boxes. Includes general notes on various topics in the first box. These are indexed under subject. There are headings for Baja and under this are topics concerning medicinal cures and Barrett's health statistics. This box ends with the subject India Physical. The second box consists of slips on small villages of Inner Asia, and could possibly be linked with the photographs of that expedition in 1905-06. The third box concerns Abyssinia of 1909 and includes a crude lexicon of the language spoken there (Romanized).

Box 7

General notes on various topics
Notes on villages of Inner Asia
Field notes on Abyssinia (includes lexicon)

SERIES V: MISCELLANY. 2.5 inches.

Arranged alphabetically.

Includes: a bibliography of California in United States and Mexico, biographical sketch of Barrett's life by Geoffrey J. Martin, class lecture notes from geography courses taken at Harvard, materials on Japanese writing, passports issued by U.S. Department of Agriculture and the American Embassy in Tokyo, and an X-Ray report on Barrett in 1940 and other information on bones. Of special interest is the biographical sketch written in 1976 which includes a bibliography of Barrett's publications. The passports are very ornate.

SERIES VI: PHOTOGRAPHS. 1897-1906. 39 inches.

Sorted chronologically by place with little arrangement within boxes.

Prints, negatives, with some noteslips attached, mounting cards with annotations but most photographs removed, some 8" x 10" enlargements of smaller ones. Photographs of travels to Norway, 1897-98; Europe, June 1897 and January 1899; Arizona-New Mexico-Colorado, 1900; Baja Expedition, 1903-04; and the Inner Asia Expedition, 1905-06. Most of the photographs are of the geographical terrains with views of mountains predominating. There appears to be much duplication. There are a few pictures of native inhabitants, buildings, caravans, and other non-geographical views. The Arizona-New Mexico-Colorado box contains a few photographs of Navajo Indians. The Inner Asia boxes contain pictures of mountains taken with a theodolite camera capable of measuring altitude. In the last box on Inner Asia is a faded photograph of Barrett with a native Asian. Also in this box are some 8" x 10" enlargements of the Himalayas and annotated mounting cards with respective prints unattached. The negatives that were originally in Box 9 are nitrate and have thus been separated.

Box 9
