Biographical Note

Ted Allan Rathbun earned his B.A. (1964), M.A. (1966), and Ph.D. (1971) in anthropology from the University of Kansas, where he studied under anthropologist William M. Bass. He taught English as a Peace Corps Volunteer in Iran, where he became fluent in Farsi and did research for his doctorate. He conducted research on topics as wide-ranging as population growth in Iran; the physical characteristics of Woodland Indians; Coastal South Carolina paleopathology; growth rates among ancient urban states; shark attacks and human remains; social class and health; the history of African American health; and predynastic cemeteries at Hierakonpolis, Upper Egypt. Through his South Carolina field work and publications, Rathbun became noted for expanding the knowledge of Afro-American history from the colonial and Civil War times.

Rathbun was also a pioneer in establishing and expanding the use of forensic anthropology technology by law enforcement. He was licensed in South Carolina to assist coroners, law enforcement officials and medical examiners in identifying human remains. He and his students refined a process for the reconstruction of victim's faces, which were then used to assist in their identification. He served as a consulting physical anthropologist to the Charleston County Medical Examiner (1973-93); Deputy State Archaeologist for Forensics (1985-2000); and Consultant to the U.S. Military Central Identification Laboratory in Hawaii (1990-2003/2004) where he reviewed cases of military (and civilian) remains from the Vietnam, Korea, and WWII eras. He also participated in the Disaster Mortuary Operational Response Team (DMORT) efforts for identification of the victims of September 11, 2001.

Rathbun taught at the University of South Carolina for 30 years. He was a popular classroom professor and led research field trips with his students. In 1996 he received the Louise Fry Scudder Faculty Award, which recognized him for excellence in undergraduate and graduate teaching, student mentoring and advising, and service contributions beyond the university. He retired from full-time teaching in 2000.

Rathbun was also a research associate of the South Carolina Institute of Archaeology and Anthropology; director of the American Board of Forensic Anthropology (1985-91); and for 15 years a member of the editorial board of the Journal of Forensic Sciences. In 2005, he was honored by the American Academy of Forensic Sciences with the T. Dale Stewart Award — its highest honor in Forensic Anthropology — for his lifetime achievements and contributions to the field.

Scope and Content Note

This collection is comprised of the professional papers of Ted Allan Rathbun. The collection documents his career as a forensic anthropologist and educator through correspondence, publications and teaching materials. The collection includes the publications resulting from his research in South Carolina, Egypt, and Glorieta, New Mexico, as well as a small portion of his research data. His other writings that can be found in the collection include his monographs, journal articles, papers presented at conferences, and reviews he wrote for various journals and publications. The collection also includes materials relating to his consulting activities for law enforcement agencies, and military and historical organizations. Additionally, the collection contains materials related to organizations that he was a member of and his syllabi and lecture notes as a professor at the University of South Carolina. The collection also includes Rathbun's course notes when, as a student at the University of Kansas, he studied under William Bass, Ellis Kerley and other notable anthropologists. Among his correspondents were J. Lawrence Angel, Eve Cockburn, Henry Dobyns, Henry Field, T. Dale Stewart, and T. Cuyler Young.

Restrictions

Two folders containing student grades have been separated and are restricted until 2055. For preservation reasons, one computer disk in the collection has been separated and is restricted.

Extent

Approximately 20 linear feet (48 document boxes), 1 oversize box, 1 folder

Provenance

Dr. Rathbun donated his professional papers to the National Anthropological Archives in 2005.

Related Collections

Rathbun's South Carolina research materials are at the South Carolina Institute of Archaeology and Anthropology. His other field research data can be found at the Field Museum in Chicago and the Penn Museum in Philadelphia.

Processing Note

The papers of Ted Allan Rathbun were received well organized and documented. The processing archivist kept most of the existing groupings and arrangement and organized the collection into ten series. Folder titles assigned by the archivist are placed within square brackets.

Series Descriptions and Container List

Series 1. Correspondence. 1969-2004

1.7 linear feet

This series contains professional correspondence with local, national and international colleagues, and with professional organizations regarding membership. Noteworthy among Rathbun's correspondents are J. Lawrence Angel, Eve Cockburn, Henry Dobyns, Henry Field, T. Dale Stewart, and T. Cuyler Young.

More of Rathbun's correspondence can be found elsewhere in the series. Correspondence relating to his book, Human Identification: Case Studies in Forensic Anthropology, which he co-edited with Jane Buikstra, is found in Series 5. Publications. Correspondence from USC officials, colleagues, and students can be found in Series 9. University of South Carolina.

Series 2. Field Work. 1976-1996, 2001

3.33 linear feet

This series contains Dr Rathbun's field research in South Carolina, Egypt and New Mexico. The folders in Subseries: South Carolina are arranged by the site number or site name. The common name for a location may have more than one site number, in which case the common name is used (e.g., Folly Island, Daw's Island) as the placement in the inventory. Subseries: Egypt contains the work of Rathbun, his wife Babette, and several USC students who participated in the 1977 Hierakonpolis Expedition under the direction of Dr. Renée Friedman. Working in the excavations in the Predynastic Cemetery at HK43, they inventoried and analyzed the skeletal material from HK43. Subseries: Glorieta, New Mexico contains Rathbun's work analyzing the remains from a mass burial of 33 Confederate Soldiers who were killed March 28, 1862.

Rathbun was noted for his expertise in the analysis of human skeletal material. At the time of his retirement he was the only Board Certified Forensic Anthropologist in South Carolina. In addition to his teaching career at USC he was a consultant to various law enforcement agencies, the military and historical organizations. This series contains those papers. Subseries: General contains Rathbun's files from Philadelphia's Tenth Street First African Baptist Church Cemetery project, training and consulting to South Carolina judicial agencies, and his visiting lecture programs to other universities. Subseries: CILHI makes up the bulk of the series and contains his work as a forensic consultant to the U.S. Army's Central Identification Laboratory Hawaii (CILHI) from 1993 to 2004. He traveled to the laboratory in Hawaii several times to consult on the cases, as well as to review progress and procedures concerning the identification of case files. The Laboratory Visit reports are at the beginning of the sequence. He also reviewed numerous cases of military (and civilian) remains from the Vietnam, Korea, and WWII eras. During this time CILHI changed its identification scheme from Case#-Year to Year-Case#. For archival purposes all case files have been sequenced in Year-Case# order. Subseries: Public Service contains his files from the pro bono consulting that he provided to coroners, law enforcement officials and medical examiners in identifying human remains.

Series 5. Publications. 1963-2001

2.92 linear feet

This series is comprised of Rathbun's monographs. Included are drafts and manuscripts and correspondence with publishers and co-authors. The book he co-edited with Jane Buikstra is a separate subseries, noting its importance in his career. Rathbun was an active officer and participant in professional organizations; his monographs associated with these organizations comprise the second subseries.

SUBSERIES: HUMAN IDENTIFICATION: CASE STUDIES IN FORENSIC ANTHROPOLOGY is comprised of manuscripts and correspondence for his book, "Human Identification: Case Studies in Forensic Anthropology," which he co-edited with Jane Buikstra.

SUBSERIES: PUBLICATIONS AND PROFESSIONAL PRESENTATIONS contains Rathbun's publications, meetings and symposia papers, and his professional presentations given at meetings or published in the journals associated with the meetings. The subjects are his work from the Middle East, South Carolina Bioarchaeology, and forensic activities. Folders in this subseries are organized by the title of the paper. Abbreviations used are:

AAA – American Anthropological Association
AAFS – American Academy of Forensic Sciences
ABFA – American Board of Forensic Anthropology
AAFS/JOFS – Journal of Forensic Sciences
AAPA – American Association of Physical Anthropologists
AAPA-AJPA – American Journal of Physical Anthropology
AFIP – Armed Forces Institute of Pathology
AIA – Archaeological Institute of America
MSB – Mountain, Swamp, Beach – Regional Meeting of Practicing Forensic Anthropologists
SEAC – Southeastern Archaeological Conference

Series 6. Grants

Series 7. Professional Organizations

This series contains organizational, administrative, and agenda information relating to conferences, meetings, symposia, and colloquiums that Rathbun participated in. Correspondence with professional organizations regarding the events is also included. The Black Bio-History Symposium (1985) and Conference on Paleopathology and Socioeconomic Change at the Origins of Agriculture (1982) are placed at the beginning of the series, denoting their importance in Rathbun's career. The remainder of the series is in alphabetical order by the name of the organization. Abbreviations used are:

AAA – American Anthropological Association
AAFS – American Academy of Forensic Sciences
ABFA – American Board of Forensic Anthropology
AAFS/JOFS – Journal of Forensic Sciences
AAPA – American Association of Physical Anthropologists

Series 9. University of South Carolina. 1970-2004

5.21 linear feet

Rathbun taught at the University of South Carolina from 1970 to 2000. Subseries: Teaching contains lecture notes and syllabi for the classes he taught. The subseries is arranged by the USC Anthropology class number, and is in semester sequence. Subseries: Anthropology Department Files is comprised of Rathbun’s records of information relating to the USC Department of Anthropology from 1970-2004. During this time the anthropology department grew from being combined with the sociology department into an independent department within the university with 13 faculty members. Included in this series are documents associated with department issues, personnel, finances, and faculty meetings. Rathbun served as the Chairman of the Anthropology Department from 1982-1983 and as the Undergraduate Director from 1990-1996. Subseries: Personal Records contains the various academic and professional activities (other than teaching) associated with being a professor. Included in this subseries is correspondence from colleagues, students, and the public, and clippings from newspapers and periodicals, primarily noting his assistance to law enforcement agencies in identifying victims. Also included are his USC personnel records, his yearly faculty reports, and his daily calendars.
